Mu Cang Chai is located in the Yen Bai Province of Vietnam in the northwest region, nestled in the Hoang Lien Son Mountain Range. It is famous for the stunning rice terraces that spread across the rolling hills, creating a landscape that changes with the seasons. Mu Cang Chai Vietnam has a subtropical, humid climate. The temperature ranges from a maximum of 29.8 degrees Celsius to a minimum of 9.8 degrees Celsius, with a yearly average temperature of 20.1 degrees Celsius. Due to its pleasant weather, Mu Cang Chai can be visited at any time of the year.

12:30: Upon Mu Cang Chai, we will stop for lunch at local restaurant. After that, we will transfer to visit The Raspberry hills (Doi Mam Xoi). This hill is located in Han Chong village, La Pan Tan commune. The reason the rice fields are called “raspberry hills” is because of the shape of the terraced fields that are adjacent to each other, round like raspberries in the season to be picked. Visiting Raspberry hills, you will stop outside the parking area then we will use the local motorbike to get to the top of the hills (10-15 minutes on motorbike)

After visiting the raspberry hill, we will continue to transfer for 40 km more (1 hour transfer) to reach Le Champ Tu Le Resort - where we will overnight here. Le Champ is nestled on the mountainside with a full view of the Tu Le valley and immense terraced fields. Standing on the balcony, you will admire the majestic rice fields view, towering mountains surrounded by clouds in a 27-hectare campus running along the mountainside.

A very special point when coming to LE CHAMP is experiencing the natural hot mineral spring right on Le Champ’s premises with both outdoor pools and private bathrooms to enrich health, eliminate fatigue, and enjoy moments of relaxation. Growing up by the hot stream nestled around the valley, Thai people have kept the naked bathing custom for hundreds of years. Originating from the ground, hot mineral spring absorbs the quintessence of the legendary land and promises the “spirit water” containing secrets of the Thai women’s beauty.
